Rhodes State Launches Online Degrees this Fall

LIMA, Ohio— Rhodes State College is pleased to announce three new fully online degrees available this Fall semester. Students can now obtain an associate degree in business administration, business management and marketing through the College's Center for Distance Education.

Dedicated faculty provide quality instruction through this learning option. The course objectives, content, course materials, and assignments are the same as traditional courses. After completion of an internet-based course, students will have developed the same skills and have the same knowledge as traditional students. The experience of an online course will be different, but the pace and content of the course will be the same as traditional classes.

Applications are now being accepted and Fall classes begin August 22.
